AFRICAN AMERICAN QUILTERS OF LOS ANGELES

African American Quilters of Los Angeles (AAQLA) was founded in 1986 by a group of black women who shared the love of quilting. Their goal is to increase the personal and public awareness and knowledge to support the expression of African American quilting as well as celebrating and continuing the tradition of quilting. AAQLA has a broad outreach in the Los Angeles community. Their diverse membership reflects the growing interest in creating African American quilts and sharing their quilted items to hospitals, foster homes, senior citizen centers, and in local quilt and art exhibits.
