

The MultiCultural Center presents

PLAYING IN UNITY

STRENGTHENING COMMUNITY THROUGH MUSIC

VINCE FELICIANO

In collaboration with This May Help, a project of the Pahl Initiative, join us for an evening of community building through music with UCSB Alumni Vince Feliciano. This event seeks to democratize, de commodify, and reclaim music by dismantling barriers of resources, elitism, and market forces that dictate who gets to create. Together, we will play music as a form of playful expression and communal connection — accessible to all, beyond the label of “musician.”

WED OCT 22 • 4-5:30 PM
MCC LOUNGE

Vince is a private music instructor and performer based in the Bay Area. He currently teaches at PnC Music Company, where he offers lessons in piano, guitar, ukulele, electric bass, drums, recorder, and cajon. As a bassist, Vince primarily plays with several Bay Area groups in styles ranging from jazz, funk, R&B, Japanese pop, and acoustic indie. As an acoustic guitarist, he has accompanied vocalists in neo-soul, hip-hop, and Mexican folk music. As a pianist, he has served as a wedding music director and performed throughout the Midwest and East Coast as a vocal accompanist. Vince also previously taught English/Language Arts and Music in elementary school classroom settings. Vince graduated from UC Santa Barbara with a Bachelor's in Asian American Studies, Sociology, and Philosophy, and a minor in Education. As a student, he was an EXITO Scholar and a founding member of Students Against Sexual Assault. He is currently working on his Master's in Music Therapy at Lesley University.
